

At Victoria Park 1

(Jun prepares himself for an adventure. Jun starts his strolling at the market and saw the Kee Wah bakery.)

Vendor: Sir, we have assorted Chinese cakes, a good choice to give as souvenirs back to your friends and family.

Jun: That's very mouth-watering? How much does each piece cost?

Vendor: $6.50 each, a dozen would be $72.

Jun: Could you lower the price to $140 for 2 dozens?

Vendor: Ok, Sir. Here you go.

Jun: Thank you so much. Have a great day!

Vendor: Enjoy your tour, Sir.

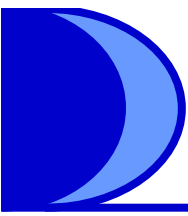

(Jun doesn't know how to get to Victoria Park so he asks someone for direction.)

Jun: Excuse me. Sorry to interrupt but could you please tell me where Victoria Park is?

Local: Are you new here?

Jun: Yes, I'm a tourist from Japan. I was born here but it's been quite awhile since I visited the country again. I'm trying to use this map but I can't figure out which way to go.

Local: We are in this area. So, you are three blocks away from Victory Park.

At Victoria Park 1

Jun: Uhh huh.

Local: Walk straight in this street and then turn left at the first corner ahead. Are you with me so far?

Jun: Yes, I'm following.

Local: Next, walk straight for another two blocks and you can see a big crowd of people. You can't miss that. Today is the celebration of the 19th Tiananmen Massacre.

Jun: Yeah, you're right. In fact, I read it in the newspaper and a lot of people are talking about it. Thank you for your time.

Local: You're welcome. Enjoy!
